

Hydro Flask Price: Is It Really Worth It?

By: Jaelyn Williams, Grade 10

These past few months there has been a big debate on if Hydro Flasks are really worth the money. I personally think that they are worth the money. They keep your drinks cold/hot all day and they are super cute!

The water bottle helps you stop using plastic water bottles, which is a huge problem right now. Our earth is dying due to all the plastic people are using. Perhaps there are other types of bottles to buy that can keep your drinks cold, but I think that getting a Hydro Flask is a good investment.

I put ice and water in my Hydro Flask before I go to bed. When I wake up there is still ice in it and it stays cold all day. Of course you can get much cheaper things that are pretty similar to the Hydro Flask. Many people have gone to walmart and got.

As a student of Logan High School what do you think about the prices on Hydro Flasks?

From straws to “save the turtles” and the metal bottles to help the environment, this trend has been increasingly popular. Though Hydro Flasks have been around since 2009, the popular app “VSCO” has brought them back in full swing. The stainless steel bottles are safe, effective, and help the environment by reducing plastic bottle pollution. The 18 oz (the smallest bottle) is at a set price of $29.95. Are these prices worth it?

In order to find these results and finally understand if the price of this bottle is really worth it, I sent out a survey to all classes and gathered up a total of 343 responses. The responses may shock you, seeing that this product was meant to save pollution and living things, even our earth.

As you can see, about 72.3% of the 343 students that responded don't think the price is worth it. What about you? Do you think the prices are worth the bottle, or do you think they're overpriced? A nice discussion to have with your friends, or just to follow the vcsco trends. Either way, this product has brought plenty of laughs and debates along with its unexpected popup in fame.
